In the Light

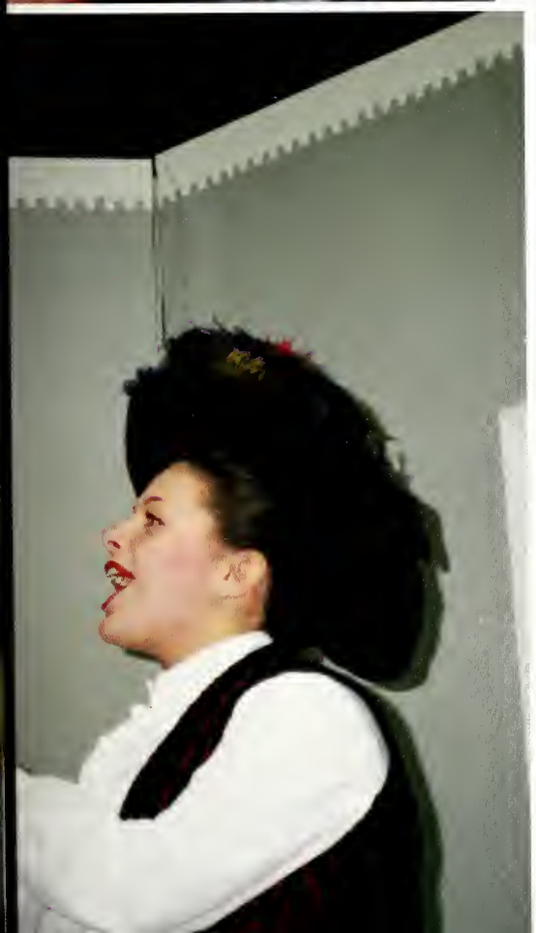
The goal of the Tartan is to seek to be an accurate representation of Covenant College as a whole over the year, covering everything from the basketball team to the philosophy club, and from the widows' ministry to the brass choir. Not only is the content of the book to be an accurate reflection of the college, but so is the theme. And that is why we have chosen "In the Light." As trite as it may seem, it truly captures the college motto--"In all Things, Chirst Pre-eminent." Just as Christ is to be pre-eminent in all that we do here at Covenant, so are all things to be done in the light of God's Word.

StudentLife

Its vast and diverse array of clubs and activities is certainly one of Covenant's unique traits. And the fact that the clubs are all initiated, funded, and run by students themselves insures that they are an accurate expression of the Covenant community itself.



Mark Slavosky and Sophia Long are all smiles now that they're done with their class meetings for the day. Orientation is no longer as laid back as it once was, but now includes rigorous studying in the new Christian Mind course.

Which way to Founders? Moving in on the first day of orientation can be a bit confusing, but with people like Ian Work on the job directing traffic, everything is sure to run smoothly.

Every year freshman learn how to be servants in the community through the amateur project. Rebekah Tuggy and John Goodman prepare some four-by-fours to help make a parking lot for a local Spanish mission.

Welcome Freshmen!

Once again, freshmen and transferred were welcomed by a slew of returning students, including R.A.s and dorm staff, ready to whisk all of their belongings to rooms which the freshmen had never seen. After finding all of their stuff, meeting their roommates and settling into their rooms, the freshmen were ready to begin a rigorous week in which they were the first to experience the new Christian Mind class. Many of you will remember when freshmen orientation felt like camp, and some will remember the week of Self in Society lectures last year, but none have experienced what this year's freshmen did. They arrived at Covenant, having already read The Idea of a Christian College by Arthur Holmes and having written extensively on the topic. Then, they spent most of their week in classes on the topic. The students did, as many students have in years past, spend one day serving the communty through Amateur Project.

"Amateur Project was really good because it put feet to your theology."

--Luke Trader

Susannah Perry sings from her heart during a time of prayer and praise with her small group. Small groups provide a great way to begin building a student's first friendships at college.

Jared Farquhar and Brynne Osborn take a break on the lawn after playing some of the favorite orientation "get-to-know-you" games. During orientation there are so many new people to meet that the "silly" games are often helpful for remembering names.

"Diamond Dan" sings another great oldie at the Sock Hop. The music was enjoyed by people of all ages as alumni, faculty, and students all turned out for the fun evening.

Dr. Hamm emphatically conducts the Madrigal singers during the concert. The concert serves as an exciting foretaste to the great music to come at the Madrigal dinners in December.

Becca Holmes, Corrin Ranney, and Heather Rantal step out in their best poodle skirts for the Sock Hop. After a busy week, including the start of mid-terms in many classes, students were glad for the chance to kick back on a Friday night.

A Time to Come Together

Homecoming is always a joyful time and it is made all the more special when friends, family, and alumni are able to come visit for the festivities. This year was no exception and one event, in fact, made it especially memorable. This year marked Dr. John Hamm's 30th year teaching music at Covenant and after this spring he will retire. The homecoming concert, dedicated to Dr. Hamm, was packed out as all in attendance knew what a touching evening it would be. As an extra-special treat the chorale was joined by all chorale almuni present in the audience for a special encore to the concert. The stage was overflowing with students and alumni, all who had at one point been touched by Hamm's gift of music to the college. The chorale concert was followed by another concert, a homecoming Sock Hop with music by Diamond Dan and the Cut Gems, an oldies music band made up of alumni. The band had played a reunion concert at homecoming two years ago and everyone was glad to hear them again.

"It was so great to be able to see so many of the alumni come for homecoming ."

--Becky DePrine

The chorale is joined by alumni chorale singers for a special joint encore in honor of Dr. Hamm. It was quite a magnificent sound and all those involved were able to sing their thanks to Dr. Hamm for all that he has done for music at Covenant.

Jenny Brown and Eric Towers play along with the Brass Choir during the homecoming concert. The musicians are always grateful for the opportunity to play for friends and family.

"Come on over here sweetie!" Jared Farquhar and Rachel Hackenberger are having a blast at the annual "girl-ask-guy" event.

Chris Holton shows his friends how to really let loose and move with the music. Many students kicked off their shoes that night in true hillbilly style.

Rebecca Hurley and a friend from a neighboring collge clap along to the music. Everyone enjoyed the laid-back atmosphere and live music really set the stage for fun.

Pull Out Those Cowboy Boots

When you see couples everywhere dressed in cowboy hats, boots and overalls you know that once again CAB has come through to put together another great Kilter. Despite the difficulty with Kilter falling on the same night as Madrigal tickets sales, everything still ran smoothly. Kilter was moved from the Great Hall to a large yellow tent filled with hay, bluegrass music, candy apples, and dancin' out on the Chapel lawn. This enabled students to hold their position in the Madrigal line while still being able to attend the "Farmyard Fandango." The great music was certainly one of the highlights of the evening. The band played country favorites as well as some of their own music.

"The music was so much fun and it worked really well to set the atmosphere."

--Bailey Martz

Kilter also included many fun fall activities such as pumpkin carving and bobbing for apples. Despite the somewhat chilly air outside, it was quite warm inside the tent with all of the great dancing and music. A few students rebelled a bit against the country theme by dressing out in their best leather and punk garb. It was all in good fun and they brought many a smile to those in attendance.

Pigtails were quite the fashion that evening and Julie Swanson and Michelle Toner were no exception. The country theme brought out some great western gear as students came in their best boots and cowboy hats.

Jade Alger, Joey Redd, and Josh Wise get down with some crazy two-stepping. Now that there is no longer a dancing restriction, students were able to visit local country dance clubs in order to get in good practice for the evening.

"But even a momentary separation from anyone to whom one has just been introduced is almost unbearable." - Tonia McKenna as Cecily Cardew and Mark Slavovsky as Algernon Moncrieff

"Ignorance is like a delicate exotic fruit; touch it and the bloom is gone. The whole theory of modern education is radically unsound. Fortunately in England, at any rate, education produces no effect whatsoever." - Christine Iris Alston as Lady Bracknell

"But why does your aunt call you her uncle? 'From little Cecily with her fondest love to her dear Uncle Jack.' there is no objection, I admit, to an aunt being a small aunt, but why an aunt, no matter what her size may be, should call her own nephew her uncle, I can't quite make out. Besides, your name isn't Jack at all; it is Ernest.' - Mark Slavovsky as Algernon and Joel Pettigrew as Jack Worthing.

The Importance of Being Earnest

"We live, I regret to say, in an age of surfaces," is a line that succinctly encapsulates the theme of this year's fall play. The Drama Association performed the Victorian comedy of manners by Oscar Wilde, "The Importance of Being Earnest." The dedicated cast and crew presented four performances Preview Weekend, including a Saturday matinee by the commited understudies. Brynne Osborn, who played Gwendolyn Fairfax, stated, "I wasn't expecting much from Covenant's Theatre Program, and was very happy to find out that it greatly exceeded my expectations."

"It is a terrible thing for a man to find that all his life he has been speaking nothing but the truth."

--Oscar Wilde

The cast ably handled the witty repartee required by Wilde's epigrammatical style, much to the delight of the audience. The butlers glided their way through choreographed scene changes in front of the audience. The crew kept the show running beautifully. All of this contributed to another successful theatrical undertaking by the Drama Association.

"The precept as well as the practice of the primitive church was distinctly against matrimony.' "That is obviously the reason why the primitive church has not lasted up to the present day." - Chris Kornman Rev. Chasuble and Michelle Higgins.

"Gwendolyn, will you marry me?" - Joel Pettigrew as Jack and Brynne Osborn as Gwendolyn Fairfax

The Brass Choir plays out a melodious tune to welcome the guests to the dinner. The warm sounds of brass music is always reminiscent of the holidays and it is no exception here.

The harpsichord gives a very traditional sound to the music played at the Madrigal dinner. Jessica Hudson gladly lends her expertise to the enjoyment of all listening.

A musician of many talents, Dr. Steele plays three different recorder for some of the music during the dinner. Dr. Steele also conducted the Brass choir and thus was quite busy throughout the evening.

Christmas Feasting

The banners are hung, the trees are lit; and it is clear that Christmas has come to Covenant and it's time for the annual Madrigal dinners. The first weekend in December is always an exciting one as the music department presents three consecutive nights of great music and great food all in the traditional Elizabethan style.

"I've been coming to the Madrrgal dinners for sixteen years and this is the best singing I've heard yet."
--Local Resident

The dinners seek to implement many aspects of the Elizabethan era, and the Great Hall provides the perfect atmosphere. Courses included pork, chicken, bread bowl soup, fruit and nuts and even flaming plum pudding. The dinners also offer many job opportunities for students needing to earn some Christmas money. Jobs can be found in the kitchen, checking coats, or even serving food as one of the sixteen wenches.

The hard work of all who were involved was seen in the great success of the three evenings. The last evening of the dinner was truly made memorable by even the weather. As the guests were leaving, a light snow began to fall covering Carter hall in a delicate white blanket.

One of the favorite courses of the meal is always the bread bowl soup. Here, Sarah Ireland and David Illman enjoy the good food and magical atmosphere of the evening.

"We wish you a merry Christmas..." The Madrigal singers pour their hearts into the music while entertaining the guests. Months of hard practice really paid off.

The Friday night concert featuring Sandra McCracken was one of the many great weekend activities offered by the Campus Activities board.

All dressed up for an evening out at the symphony. Jenny Pankratz, Abigail Lundelius, Hosanna Tamminga, and Emily Jordan are ready for an evening out. The Chattanooga Symphony also features quite a few great Covenant musicians.

When Friday Rolls Around...

The weekend is here and many options await students for how to use their blessed two-day respite. Chattanooga and the surrounding area offers many opportunities. Being only two hours from Atlanta, students often enjoy spending a Saturday at Six Flags theme park. In Downtown Chattanooga one can find great restaurants, entertainment and of course, Coolidge Park. The park is only a year old and is quite a favorite of many students. It has a great water fountain, a carousel, and plenty of open field are for playing frisbee. The Tivoli theatre and Memorial Auditorium are also located downtown. Going to the symphony, opera, or contemporary concerts is a popular way to spend a Friday night.

"I personally prefer to use my weekend to catch up on all the sleep I missed during the week."

--Jonathan Thrower

The weekend is also a time to get some real work done. Perhaps the library isn't the most exciting place to be on a Saturday, but the benefits balance out in the end. Be it catching up on reading, finishing up an important paper, or focusing on SIP research, many students appreciate the weekend time to work on academic pursuits.

Bethany LoPiccolo, Lael Rodriguez, and Becky Deprine are "all dressed up" in their silliest styles for a late night trip to the Waffle House. When staying up late on a Saturday night, some people get just a little bit crazy.

Diving right into the weekend is John Patterson. He and his hallmates enjoy the hospitality of the Brocks, who lent their pool to the guys for the afternoon.

That's quite a big bunch and not surprising either as the trip to Scotland is a favorite every year. Students not only enjoy the ministry opportunities in a place that needs it so desperately, but they also appreciate the beautiful surroundings.

Kelly Clarkson and Michelle Higgins are just too silly for words as they play around one of the floor mattresses at the Bowery Mission. Being able to actually stay at the Bowery gave the students the opportunity to have a closer connection with the men who live in the mission.

Breaking Old Boundaries

Every March college students from around the U.S. to around the globe embark on great relaxing/exciting/thrill seeking adventures- it must be spring break. However, 59 Covenant students decided to do things a little differently this year. They participated in the annual Break on Impact trips that send students across the U.S and to farther parts of the world to use their time off in the service of the Lord. While many students are busy working on their tans, these selfless students are spreading the gospel as well as helping the ministries of full-time missionaries working with Mission to the World. This year students traveled to Daytona Beach, Florida, the Bowery Mission in New York City as well as international destinations such as Scotland, Uganda, Turkey and South Africa. This was the first year for the trips to Turkey and South Africa and many students hope that they will be included again in the future. The students in South Africa had the opportunity to learn puppet ministry with Agape Puppets ministry leader Linda Summer.

"I loved the opportunity to wittness to the homeless in New York last year and I couldn't wait to go back again this year"
--Kelly Clarkson

Fresh off the plane in Istanbul, the Turkey team stops to capture the moment. Some of the highlights of the trip to Turkey were all of the historical New Testament which the group was able to visit.

Dr. Krabbendam points out some land as Josh Emrich and others look on. The land is an area in which Dr. Krabbendam is currently planning to build a house.

Annaliese Gilman smiles as she looks out over the ocean. We're sure that thoughts of papers and tests are from her mind on this break.

It's Getting a Little Warmer

When the weather begins to get a little warmer and the students get just a little bit more restless, you know what must be right around the corner-spring break. While some students take the time to kick back and relax on a sunny beach, others know that it is the perfect time to finish up an important paper or to devote some serious time to working on one's SIP. Whatever, the case, one think is always true, spring break is your time to spend as you please along with a little bit of extra sleeping-in in the process.

"I love going to Florida in the Spring...particularly when I get to spend the time with such great friends."

--Becca Holmes

Many students head home for the break or wherever they find family. Karen Fink was able to visit her sister Teresa in Peru while Krista Iverts went home to Colorado to help prepare for her sister's wedding in the summer. A number of guys from Suburbs packed the tents along with them as they headed south to Florida to rough-it in the great outdoors on a camping trip. Spring break is definitely a great source of rejuvenation as students return much more refreshed and ready to tackle the rest of the semester.

A large group of Covenant students hit the beaches for the break and this group took it all the way to the Bahamas to some of the best beaches in the world.

Did you see anything interesting? Brien Meyer knows what he likes best about the Bahamas- the great snorkeling and amazing fish and coral reefs to be seen.

Natalia (Claire Larson) does a very good job at intimidating the weaker Lamov (Matt Hogg).

Mrs. Popov (Emily Shaw) swears her undying devotion to her late husband while her man servant Luka (McGee Lapish) pleads in vain.

A Little Bit of Comedy

This spring, the drama club put on two one act plays by Chekhov entitled "The Brute" and "The Marriage Proposal." The plays were presented on April 19th and 20th, perfect timing for a much needed break from studying. The Chekhov plays were farces, with the basic theme being the battle of the sexes, often leaving the Covenant students roaring with laughter.

"I greatly enjoyed helping to direct the play this semester. The cast and crew did a wonderful job"

--Abigail Lundelius

Mrs. Popov weeps over the photo of her late husband.

Presesident and Mrs. Brock join the fun up on the top deck. Students love the Brocks warm and friendly personality and always enjoy seeing them at events such as Spring Banquet.

An Evening on the River

The flowers are in bloom and the night is set aside for dancing and dining. Covenant's annual Spring Banquet is always greatly anticipated and this year was no exception. This year's banquet was held on the Southern Belle Riverboat which provided great atmosphere, but a bit more limited space than in the past. As a result, CAB director Iain Burguet was not surprised when tickets for the event sold out in the first day and a half. As mentioned, the riverboat did lend a great setting and with the warm evening temperatures many students chose to retreat to the upper open-air deck of the boat to enjoy the scene of the smooth water and moonlight. Rather than a full meal as has been the case in the past, the banquet featured a wide array of hors d'ouvres instead. This helped to save space for the dance floor that was continually full throughout the night. All were in agreement that the evening was indeed a success and were sad to see the boat docking at the end of the night. "the time just flew by " said Monica Linde.

"I had never been on the riverboat before and I was glad to get the chance before I graduate this year."

--Corrin Ranney

Liz Farnsworth gets a hug from Marcos Rivera before boarding the boat. The lovely weather allowed many of the ladies to wear sleeveless dresses that evening.

Monica Linde and Justin Johnson take a break at a table after some lively dancing. The dance floor was full throughout the evening as students kicked off their shoes for a little more comfort.

A group of Maclellan hall residents soak up the afternoon sun while enjoying the music. We sure hope they remembered to put on some sunscreen.

Tom Okie and Jade Alger entertain the crowd with their folk melodies. The ponytailed pair are a Covenant favorite and always bring out a large crowd.

Head to Head. Jared Farquhar coaches from the sidelines as two of his friends fight to the finish in inflatable boxing. So Jared, who's side are you on?

Festival Will Still Live On

Despite the loss of the dear Baker Tree in its lovely corner of the chapel lawn, the Baker Tree Festival still lives on celebrating good music, crazy fun, and the end of another year The chapel lawn was quite full for six hours straight as students donned tank tops and gathered to catch some of the sun's warm rays as well as Covenant's finest talent. Although there was a brief bit of afternoon rain, it in no way dampened the spirit of the festival.

"The music was so great and its wonderful to see so many talented Covenant students that enjoy performing."

--Abby Hall

One of everyone's favorite features of the festival is the inflatable games, and this year CAB certainly did not disappoint those who came. The festival had an inflatable obstacle course, jousting, boxing and even human foosball. The evening was also complimented by hamburgers, sandwiches, brownies and the like as dinner was served out on the chapel lawn. It's not every night that one has such great entertainment to accompany the meal. The festival and music ran until 9:00 that evening making it possible for people to stop by anytime they could.

Hang on Kelly, you can do it! Isaac Wardell and Kelly Clarkson battle it out on in the inflatable jousting ring.

Dan Adams concentrates on the beat as he performs in the afternoon. The Baker Tree Festival provides a great arena for showcasing Covenant talent.

Carlos Canales, Anandit Mangalwadi, and Ana Varela wait for dinner to be served.

Dr. Voskuil gives his final address as a faculty member of Covenant College. His presence will be missed greatly by students and other faculty alike.

Annaliese Gilman and senior Wes Hollowel are all smiles.

Senior Banquet

Due to a very packed Great Hall last year, this year's annual senior banquet was held downtown at The Chattanooga-Hamilton County Trade & Convention Center. For the second year in a row, the featured speaker at Senior Banquet was history professor Dr. Louis Voskuil. He has been teaching at Covenant since 1972 and will be retiring this year. His presence will be greatly missed by the history students and by other students who had the chance to take his core class, Contemporary Global History. As only he could do, Dr. Voskuil made the graduates laugh even as he challenged them about the futures that they have before him. In addition to Dr. Voskuil, graduates Mary Grace Rogers and Matt Novenson had the opportunity to address their classmates one last time. Overall, Senior Banquet was a delight to all who attended. The night ended back at the college with the commencement concert, the President's reception, and much anticipation of the day that lay ahead.

"Dr. Voskuil's speech was wonderful - the pinnacle of his career."

--Janine Tuininga

Nathan Maphet explains something to his housemate Matt Novenson. Senior Banquet is often the one last time that friends and roommates get to spend together before they graduate.

Jamin Scribner's family and friends enjoy the meal at senior banquet. Many families join the Covenant graduates in celebration at the banquet.

The graduates stand to sing "All For Jesus," a song that they have sung many times in their Covenant College careers, one last time.

Graduation

Graduation is truly and end and a beginning. It is an end to dorm life, ARA food, searching for textbooks in the Tuck Shoppe, late night runs to Krispy Kreme, and freezing to death in air-conditioned classrooms. But hopefully, graduation is the beginning of many things as well, namely a life of learning, of serving God and His church, and of looking at everything in life through the eyes of scripture. This year's graduation, held at UTC's McKenzie Arena, was a time for students to reminisce about their years spent at Covenant, as graduates Krista Deutschmann and Pete Herron spoke. It was also a time to be exhorted by this year's speaker, Joel Belz. Graduation was a time to celebrate with family and friends. But most importantly, it was a time to testify to God's faithfulness through the good times and the bad times and to praise Him for what He has done in each student's life. Even at graduation, Covenant's motto still held true, "In all things, Christ preeminent."

"God is good, all the time. All the time, God is good."

--Krista Deutschmann quoting David Yleah

Someone is a bit excited about graduation. For Nate Early, as for many others, graduation is a much awaited and anticipated day.

Students listen intently to the commencement addressby Joel Belz, editor of World Magazine and father of graduate Esther Belz.

Alathea

Warming up is an essential key to any good practice. Jenny Brown sings up and down the octave while preparing for the afternoon's practice.

Be it an ice cream cone, or a microphone, Jodi Belk and Rachel Templeton are all smiles. All of the girls of Alathea had a "ladies night out" that included ice cream, bowling and a trip to the walking bridge.

Now where did I put that other page? Andy Crews and Joel Pettigrew put their music in order for an upcoming performance. The group sings at many different community events including area churches.

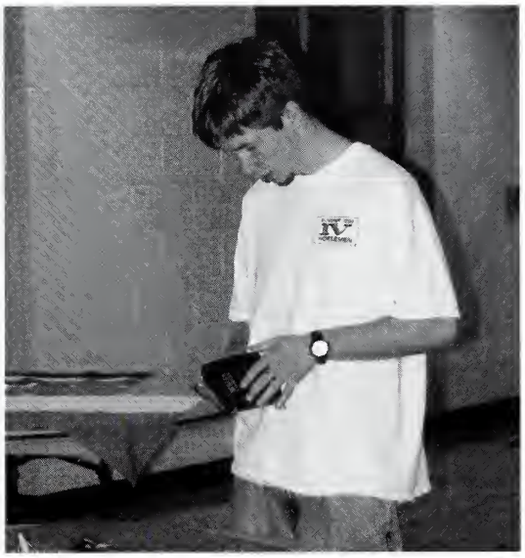
Mu Kappa



John Goodman prepares a scripture reading for the beginning of a presentation during missions emphasis week. Mu Kappa serves as an elemental part of bringing attention to the importance of missions here at Covenant.

Karen Fink arranges a table display for a special time of singing during missions week. Covenant has such a large variety of missionary and international students that it is able to provide a wide perspective of missions work.

Sara Camenisch and Meg Meiners lay out some of the refreshments during an MK meeting. The fruit dish looks great and Meg and Sara sneak some banana chips off the top.

Computer Club

Member of the Computer Club include: Todd Anderson, Kyle Posey, Matthew Krnegger, and Romeo Yleah.

Kyle Posey gives some extra timesaving tips to Matthew Krnegger on what shortcuts work best in Excel. The Computer Club is always looking for new innovative techniques to keep up on the quickly changing computer world.

Breakin' it down! Abby Reed, Seth Knight, and Rebekah Beard know how to get footloose at Kilter, the annual "Girl ask Guy" event sponsored by CAB.

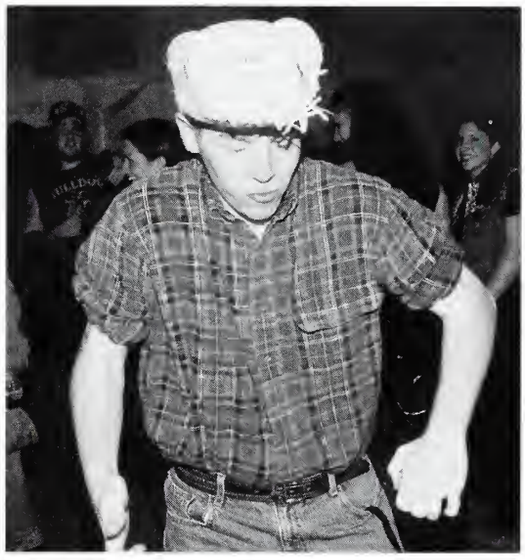
Campus Activities Board



Chris Holton gets out his favorite flannel for Kilter. CAB did a wonderful job this year incorporating pumpkin carving and bobbing for apples as well.

The crowd looks on in anticipation inside the big yellow tent. CAB brought the tent out to the Chapel lawn to accommodate the fact that Kilter fell on the same night as Madrigal Dinner tickets.

Education Club

Janelle Hensley and Liana Girton enjoy a break at one of their favorite restaurants after a long day of learning the importance of being a good teacher.

Krista Iverts and Jonathan Stoddard discuss plans for the Association of Christians Schools International annual conference in Birmingham, Alabama.

Ian Work contacts Dr. Morton about an upcoming meeting. Dr. Morton was one of the many current professors and alumni that have spoken at the club's meetings.

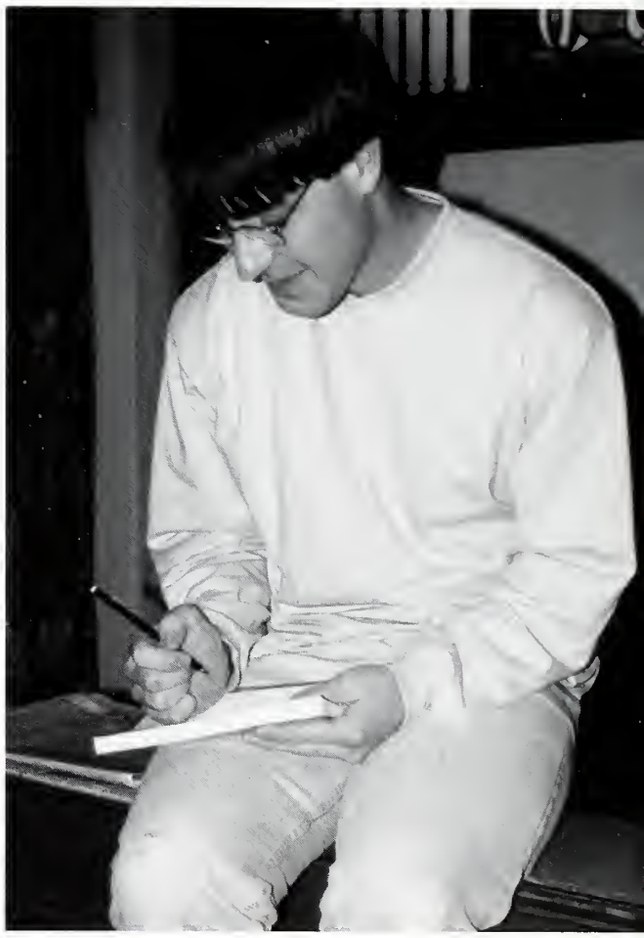
Editor John Ottinger is the brains behind the outfit that makes sure each semester Covenant students get to share their talents in the literary magazine.



By Kevin Courter

His sovereignty and love are ever bound
Together in a never breaking cord:
A union, indissoluble and sound,
Perfected by the blood that he outpoured.
For God, his own dear Son he did not spare
But gave him for a world cursed by the fall.
How shall he then, when called upon in prayer,
Not with him also freely give us all?
We know that he who has in us begun
A good work will perform it till the day
Of Jesus Christ, his own begotten Son-
The risen Lord who hears us when we pray.
And oh, what consolation since I've found
His sovereignty and love are ever bound.

Susan Crenshaw enjoys spending the evening downtown with some of the local Young Life members. Many of the students that help out with Young Life do so because of the great influence that Young Life had on them when they were in high school.

Young Life

Two Young Life members enjoy dinner out after a meeting led by Covenant students. Covenant students not only lead the meetings, but they also attend high school sporting events and often eat lunch at the high schools where they volunteer.

Okay, everybody get together now! Young Life members and volunteers group together after a meeting.

Psalm Club

Ken Montgomery accompanies the singers for some on location singing on the Lord's Day. The Psalm Club enjoys singing praises straight from the Psalter.

The bluff is an awesome place where one can see the splendor of the Lord's work all around. It is certainly an apt place to raise one's voice in thanksgiving.

Members of the Psalm club include: Ken Montgomery, Marie Gonzales, Katie Ibsen, and Kathryn Hopper.

Psalm Club members Marie Gonzales, Emily Hitchman, and Ellis Chaplin meet in the chapel on a Sunday afternoon for a time of singing and fellowship.

Are you ready for some football? John Cunnings, Sara Akin and Sarah Rodenberg take some of the kids outside to throw around a little pigskin.

Chattanooga Children's Ministry

Leslie Pfister has found a special friend for the day. The kids eagerly await visits from the students are always ready to play.

Lynea Hofseth, Heather Simpson, Mark Rippetoe, and Annie Stott enjoy spending time with the kids inside on a rainy afternoon. CCM provides a great way for students to get to know some of the community children.

Kristine Brangwine and Lynea Hofseth spend time with some of the older children. One of the great things about CCM is that it caters to children of many different ages.

We are the Bagpipe staff... and we are storytellers.

The stories we tell affect this college and the people in it for good or ill. We must not underestimate the responsibility inherent in the act of reporting. Journalism, the relating of true stories, is never a value-neutral action.

When we report fairly and give both sides of a story, that is not a neutral action. When we look deep and hard into issues facing this school, that is not a neutral action. When our writing opens readers' eyes to facts and opinions they hadn't seen or considered before, that is in no way a neutral action. These are positive actions; good deeds if you will.

Telling stories with dedication to detail and care for people is difficult. But if we are willing to do it, we can help cause our brothers and sisters in Christ to glorify the Lord in their thoughts and in their actions.

And though we'll never fulfill our role perfectly... it's fun to try.

Tartan

Megan Boutwell works on cropping pictures. She was always ready and willing to help out other staff members with extra tasks.

Bethany LoPiccolo looks through the senior quotes. She worked tirelessly to sort through all the information turned in by the seniors.

Emily Jordan, one of the Tartan's co-editors, types captions for a spread. Emily works long hours to make sure that the Tartan looks professional and is virtually error free.

Emily and Bethany discuss an interesting senior quote. They had many fun times and late nights in the yearbook office.

Janelle Hensley listens intently to a discussion of the next deadline.

Halls

One of the distinguishing traits of Covenant College is the emphasis on individual hall community. The fact that many students stay on the same hall for three or even four years of their time at Covenant makes for the creating and keeping of long-standing traditions. This section of the book is the opportunity for each of those halls to record what sets it apart from the rest, adding to the diverse community of our school.

Founders

New to the Founders staff this year is Jeremy Jones, the Resident Director. Jeremy and his wife, Christina, proudly show off their son, Benjamin David, who was born in October.

First Belz won this year's Skit Night competition. Their renditions of "YMCA" and "Bye, Bye, Bye" had people rolling on the floor in laughter.

The RAs of Founders are a wonderful group of men and women who work hard to make Founders a great place to live and study.

F.O.S.S.I.L, Founders student council, spends hours planning events for the students in the dorm. Among the activities that they plan are Koinonia, the Christmas party, and the Fall Festival.

Night falls... the steady stream of students crossing our mountaintop campus has slowed to a halt, and the wind whistles across the empty chapel lawn as the student body settles in for another sleepy Friday night. The clock reads 12:00 a.m. But wait! Suddenly, the quiet, lonely lawn erupts into frenzied motion. With yelps and howls of anticipation, the First Belz boys run out into the fierce wind for their weekly game of Ultimate Frisbee. These men (and the women, brave but few, who play along with them) weave their complex game with brotherly abandon, for they know that their hall-mates represent the finest team of gentlemen on the mountain. First Belzians, past and present, enjoy a collective tradition of loyalty and all-around good naturedness unsurpassed in the Covenant community. They each run this race of faith in their own way, but they run together. here they are, for better or for worse. They are the few, the proud... the men of First Belz.

Therefore we also, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which so easily ensnares us, and let us run with endurance the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and has sat down at the right hand of the throne of God. ~Hebrews 12:1-2

John and Dave spend some time sharing with each other during Day of Prayer in the fall. The men of Stonehenge spent the day at Coolidge Park.

As the defending champion, Stonehenge poses for a hall picture after a very eclectic skit for Founder's Skit Night.

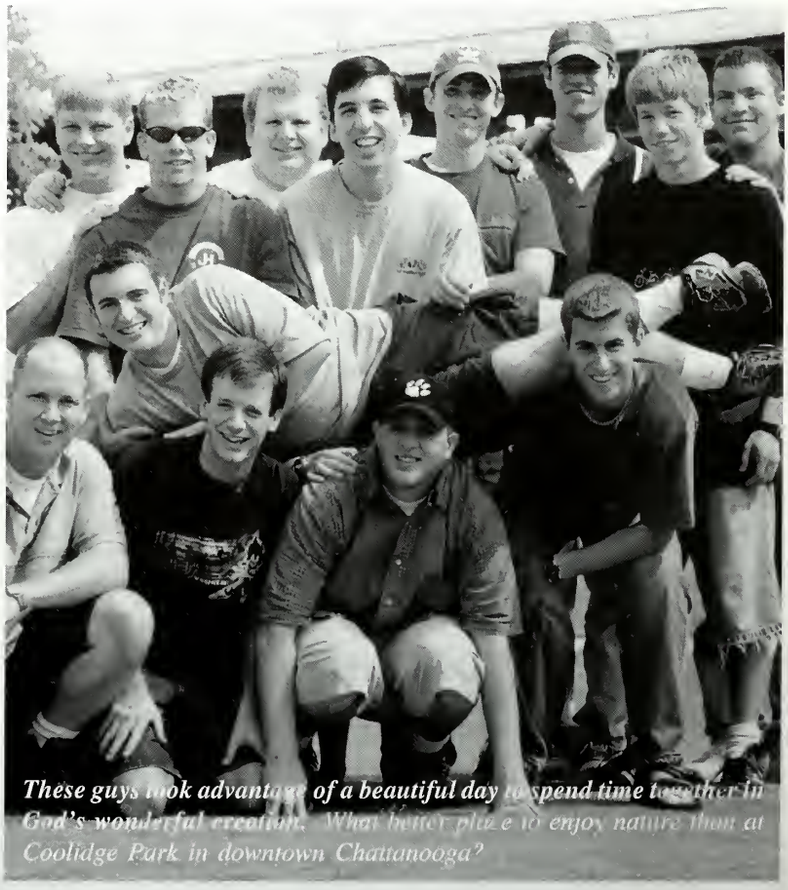
There are still those that confuse the men of Stonehenge to be the men of Second Belz. Ladies and Gentlemen, Second Belz is merely a mythical place where a certain professor named Dr. Davis used to serve as RA. The gentlemen of Stonehenge are a particularly interesting group of fellas this year. From RA Andy, of whom it is said hugs indiscriminately, to a certain Ecuadorian who often is clad in all black and usually brandishes at least one weapon. We also have amongst our crew a cook, a president, two Hollywood freaks, a misplaced Kentucky native who resembles a southern Californian, a basketball player, and a goalie from North Carolina that saved us from utter embarrassment in intramural indoor soccer. To add to that number we have a soccer fiend from Mexico, and even a young man whom calls Yemen home. Heck we even have a band on our hall. If one were to visit the hall, he would most likely hear loud music coming from an empty hall, celebrity jeopardy from SNL being quoted, and without doubt he would hear our favorite quote, "We all know the moon is not made of blue cheese, but if it were made out of barbeque spare ribs would you eat it then? I know I would, and I'd top it off with a nice cold bud..."



These guys took advantage of a beautiful day to spend time together in God's wonderful creation. What better place to enjoy nature than at Coolidge Park in downtown Chattanooga?

After a fun game night in the Jones' apartment, the Loft girls pile on the couch for a group picture. Some of them look a little squashed.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" ~ Psalm 133:1

"For as we have many members in one body, but all the members do not have the same function, so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and individually members of one another. Having then gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us, let us use them." ~ Romans 12:4-6

Blackwatch the year of the new millennium
Where the men are as strong as titanium
The caves we explored were dark and wet
And the girls we liked we sought out and met
Swimming at night in the presence of a Moon
Spending time with the ladies, oh how they did swoon
Bowling with Balcony it was real fun
Getting a 38, oh man am I done
Blackwatch point let me tell you was scary
The boys believe me, they were hairy
Chillin' with Gallery was always a good time
But if they were too busy we had Jungle on the line
Wake me up in ten minutes or I'll be late for class
No boys and girls, Chris does not go to mass
We missed our brothers Win, Dillow, and Mac
Remember LT's advice and don't smoke crack
We grew together in love and that ain't bad
Here with my brothers is what makes me glad
We're all friends here and that's no blarney
Go to sleep its time to party.

Charlie Dey and Peter Gay play hall luge. Don't try this at home!

The guys from Sutherlands obviously thought that Maclellan movie night was a dress-up occasion. Maybe someone should have told them otherwise.

Sutherland

Luke Grady, Kyle Posey, Ethan VanEck, Ty Tyler, Ben Hardesty, Nat Osborn, Peter Gay, Charlie Dey, Andrew Lucaciu, Ken Montgomery, Justin Johnson, Ellis Chaplin, John Wykoff, Adam Bruce, Paul Kent, Robert Horton, Brad Norris, Shannon Dunkin, Brandon Kruis, Rodney Collins

As the RA and sole senior of Sutherland this year, I would like to thank, commend, encourage, and challenge the men of Sutherland.

To all my hallmates, thank you for a great year,

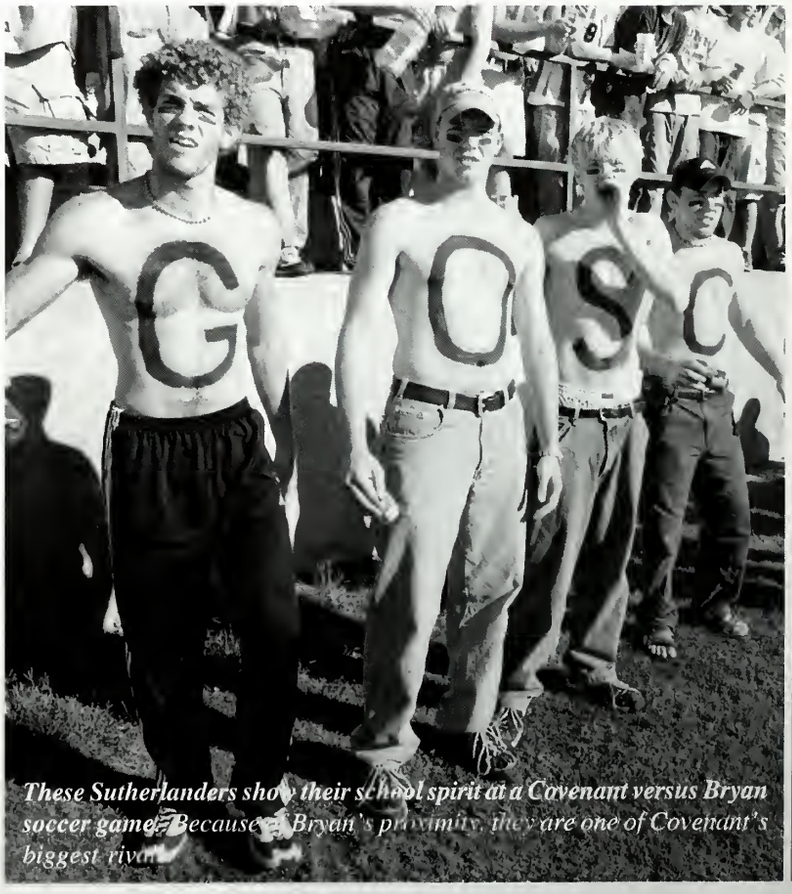
Thank you for Bill The Bowling Ball, for tennis ball wars on the hall, and for hall luge. You guys always made my life interesting and exciting. Thanks for Hall rugby and that trip to the hospital, for the 24 oz. burgers, for togas, and Swirlies. Thanks for all the bumps, bruises, and scrapes along the way. I couldn't have asked for a better group of guys to live with or a better hall to live on in my last year at Covenant. You guys challenged me like I've never been challenged before.

As the youngest group of guys on Sutherland since its beginning three years ago, I see a great deal of potential for you, both on the hall and as you move off. I would like to encourage all of you to seriously consider what the next few years holds for you. Where will God put you in the near future and what does He have in store for you when Covenant is just a distant memory?

I Peter 4 verse 8 says, "Above all, love each other deeply, because love covers over a multitude of sins." As brothers in Christ seeking to honor God in all that we do and in all our relationships, seek to thoughtfully encourage one another and hold each other accountable in your daily lives. Don't wait for others to reach out and minister to you, reach out and minister to those around you now!

A special thank you goes out to my two roommates who strengthened me in immeasurable ways. Thank you Rodney and Ben for pushing me and requiring more of me than I sometimes wanted to give. You guys will never know how much you meant to me this year, I never would have made it with out both of you.

Finally, on a closing note, I would like to quote my good friend Peter Gay who once said. "SUTHERLAND...We're not the only hall but we're the best!"



These Sutherlanders show their school spirit at a Covenant versus Bryan soccer game. Because of Bryan's proximity, they are one of Covenant's biggest rivals.

The women [illegible] pose on the overlook for a hal[illegible] It's not every day tha[illegible] girls put on their b[illegible] yet together.

Once upon a time there was an island, in which twenty-one beautiful princesses were left to commune together through stressful studying, sleeping, and joyous laughing! The fair maiden, C.R. decided to become the faithful leader of the group as all of the girls were making it through their continual challenges. Each princess made herself a home but had to come to tribal meetings each weeks to make sure all were surviving. No one ever knew if R.G. was surviving in her LR lagoon. M.P. found herself a coffee cave behind a streaming waterfall. B.D., L.R., A.H., N.G. and A.H.#2 all made a habitat of the Mario caves in the Yoshiland section of the back of the island. B.M. and B.L. beautified their huts with colorful feathers and flowers they found along the islands many trails. C.W., H.G., A.H.#3 and A.D. made a houseboat so that they could travel to the other islands (some near and some far) and capture boys to bring back to their Rowan treehouse. B.A. and H.R. played guitar and danced underneath stars while E.F. enjoyed running along the many forest trails. K.I. and B.C. had an amusement treehouse with slides, bridges, flips and swimming holes. A.L. and K.C. brought cheerful smiles to the princesses lives, but became social butterflies with the island inhabitants. The island life came to an end, but not before the twenty-one princesses came together for a line-dancing limbo feast on the open beach with twenty-one mystery dates picked especially for them! Best of all, no one was voted off the island and everyone lived happily ever after.

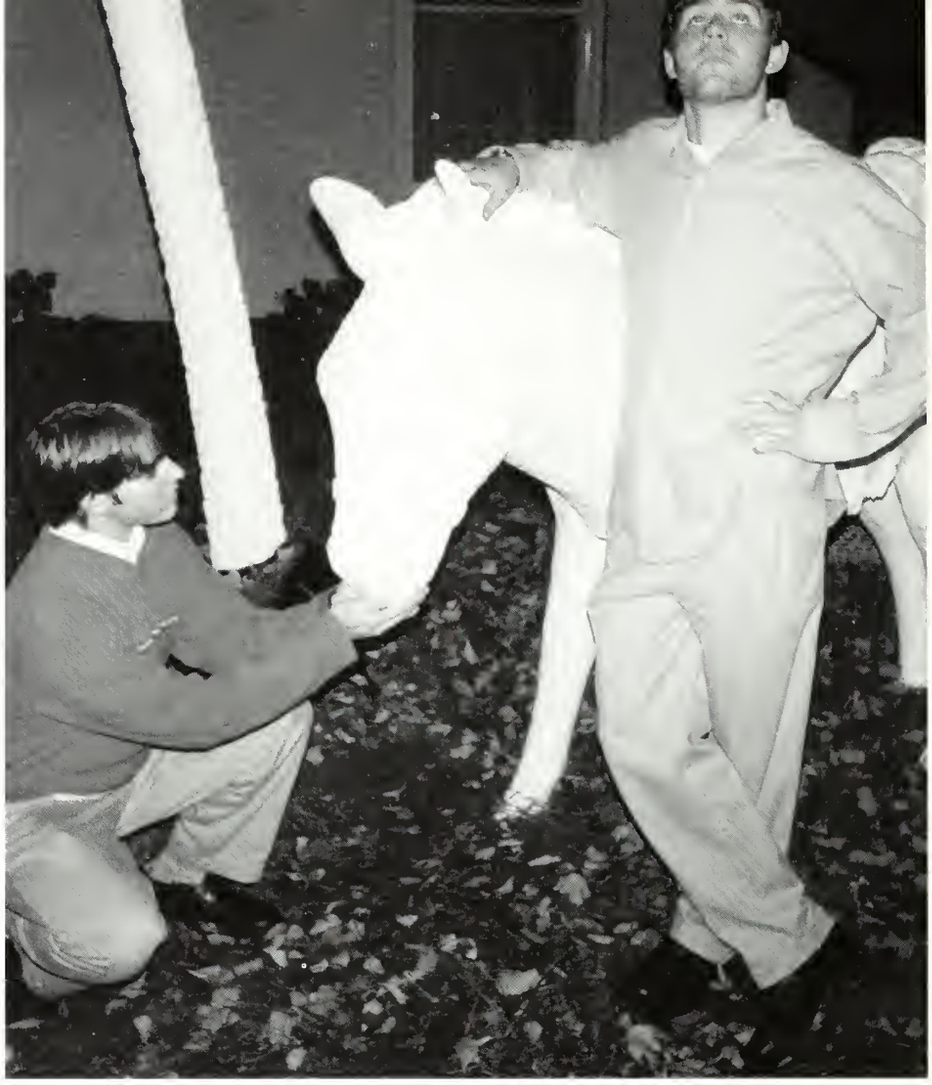
During Christmas vacation John and Joe spent some time at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville. It was there that they met the Suburbs all time hero, a stone donkey.

What better way for guys to bond than watching the Super Bowl? Suburbanites from all over came together to watch this year's big game.



Suburbs

Jack arrived early in the fall to realize that he lived on Suburbs. Here he could eat circus peanuts, warm marshmallows, and moist milk chocolate. It was a early morning when he realized, "Oh my gosh it's a mullet." His loving brother Noah said, "That is some repugnant crap." The Dictator of room 303, the great Botkinonius, wasn't pleased to see the amazing work of art on Jack's head. The Dictator only wanted the freshest mullet, and this one would not do. Jack was a good young man, he would ride his "Razor" scooter up and down the hall. What a time it was in Jack's life. He would ride with his hair just blowing in the wind, in the back that is, from speed of the scooter. It was then that the reading of C.S. Lewis and the enjoyable Bengal's game were rudely interrupted by the impact of a shattering door. Many of the fellows had to stop the rigorous fifty-cent tonk. This caused fits of rage among the Suburbanites. The door was not the same. As one hallmate put it, "Word," and others were amazed by the destruction. It was this occasion that changed all reality on the hall of the Dictator. With the growing mullet and busting of the lumber door the Dictator of 303 was deeply disturbed. But with the love of all Suburbians, the dictator was calmed from the traumatic incidences that had happened. All order was restored with just a loud "HWUH!"

Ephesians 5:1-2 ~ "Be imitators of God therefore, as dearly loved children and live a life of love, just as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us as a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God."

It just wouldn't be a complete year without a trip to Randy's. Suburbs, like most of the guys hall made a trip to Randy's for its famous hamburgers.

The Halcyon girls prove that women can be tough. Just look at this awesome display of muscle.

"Be joyful always. Pray continually; give thanks in all circumstances, for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus."

Harambe!
Working together since 2000

"May the God who gives endurance and encouragement give you a spirit of unity among yourselves as you follow Christ Jesus. So that with one heart and mouth you may glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. Accept one another, then, just as Christ accepted you in order to bring praise to God."
~ Romans 15:5-8

"Show me your ways, O LORD, teach me your paths; guide me in your truth and teach me, for you are God my Savior, and my hope is in you all day long." ~ Psalm 25:4-5

The Ghetto is not just a hall, but a group of brothers who exemplify what Covenant College strives to achieve in relating as a community and a family. It is not about a tradition of pranks, but about a tradition of unique unity and closeness. It is a tradition of brothers seeking to love the Lord with all their hearts and love each other as themselves. The Ghetto is a ministry to those looking at the college, and a ministry to those not on the hall by demonstrating how brothers ought to relate: through confrontation, accountability, encouragement, intimacy, loyalty, and honor. The Ghetto fights every year for its misunderstood reputation. It defends itself of exclusiveness, arrogance, and power; images that are created in the minds of those who haven't experienced the close unity of this brotherhood. It is the tough Christian guys this world is missing; those who stick together right or wrong, who stand fast and hold to their convictions in the face of opposition, who are willing to take chances and have the integrity to accept their mistakes, and who will endeavor to seek God's will and obey it at all costs, it is those men who make the Ghetto.

Unfortunately for Ghetto they didn't win Carter Skit Night this year like they have in the past. But, it looks like they had fun performing their skit anyway.

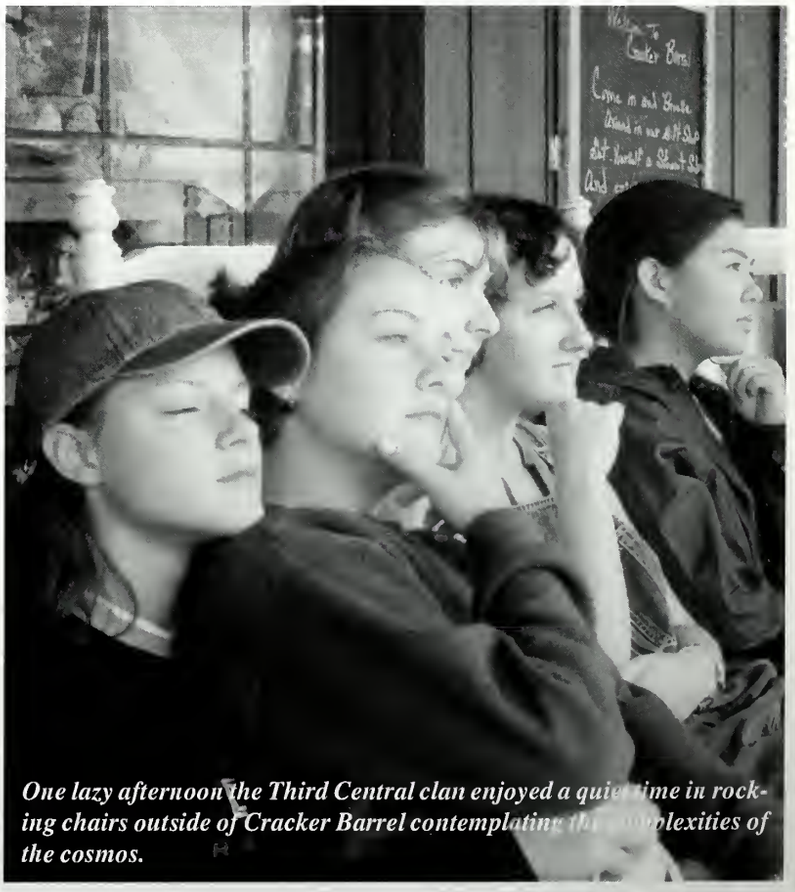
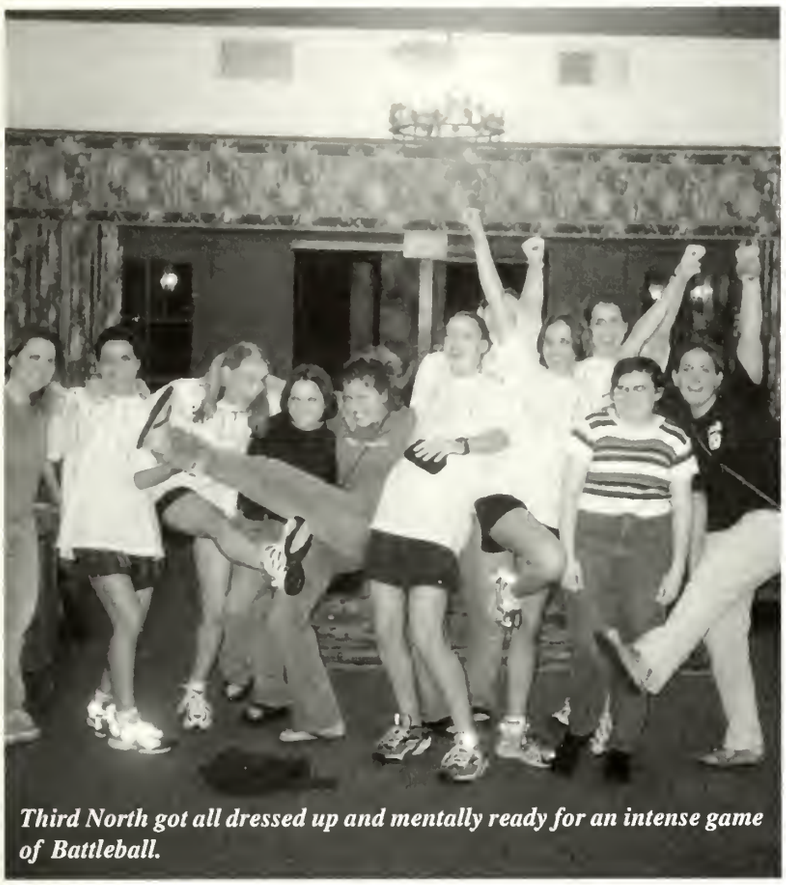
26 girls live at Carter Hall's heart,
Each of them playing their own unique part
In forming a hall that lives in accord
Finding a common ground in their same Lord
Mary Ohanian serves as RA
2 of our girls starred in the school play;
5 girls play soccer and 1 basketball
2 other girls are in volleyball
1 hails from Peru and another from France
And 2 of them know how to booty dance;
2 of the girls at Greyfriars you'll find,
Each studying hard to improve their mind
1 girl plans parties and Carter Skit night;
1 owns a bug that's yellow and bright;
2 gosh darn girls are half Japanese
1 plays violin with grace and with ease;
1 girl plays flute in our symphony
And of girls on stomp team, our hall has 3.
Look high or look low, you'll have to agree,
You can't find a hall that compares to 3C.



One lazy afternoon the Third Central clan enjoyed a quiet time in rocking chairs outside of Cracker Barrel contemplating the complexities of the cosmos.



Third North got all dressed up and mentally ready for an intense game of Battleball.

There is a hidden treasure in Carter of which few are aware. Up just one floor from a rowdy collection of infamous soccer players, third north is a rare jewel, an anchor in a sea of confusion. Hidden from view by trees from both the front and the back, we the people of 3rd North are extremely proud of our heritage which has always been one of great diversity and character. We are proud to declare that this heritage has been preserved, and we find this 2000-2001 school year to be no exception. From the top-o-the-stairs action of Bobbie and Laura all the way down to Katie and Suzanne, 3rd North has experienced a fabulous assortment of peeps. We have representatives from Philly, S. Carolina, Washington, Chicago, Iowa, even Huntsville, Alabama! We contribute basketball players, madrigal singers, drama queens, soccer stars, Lawrence hall video protagonists, Gospel Choir members, and other random fun peeps to Covenant. We now invite you to sing along with our hall anthem, to the tune of O Canada. Thanks, thank you.

O, dear Third North, Our home and native hall
True Carter love, Comes from your daughters all
With joyful hearts we read thy quotes,
The true North strong and free
Diverse and fun, our dear 3rd North, We stand on guard for thee.

This is the story of a hall
Who couldn't play soccer at all
While we took a lot of cute photographs

We were able to fall and bleed a lot
Thinking we were hot, superstars we just were not

From time at the Pettit's to ice cream at Clumpies
Breakfast with Joe's hall and birthday fun for all
We rally together through thick and through thin
Sisters in Christ from beginning to end

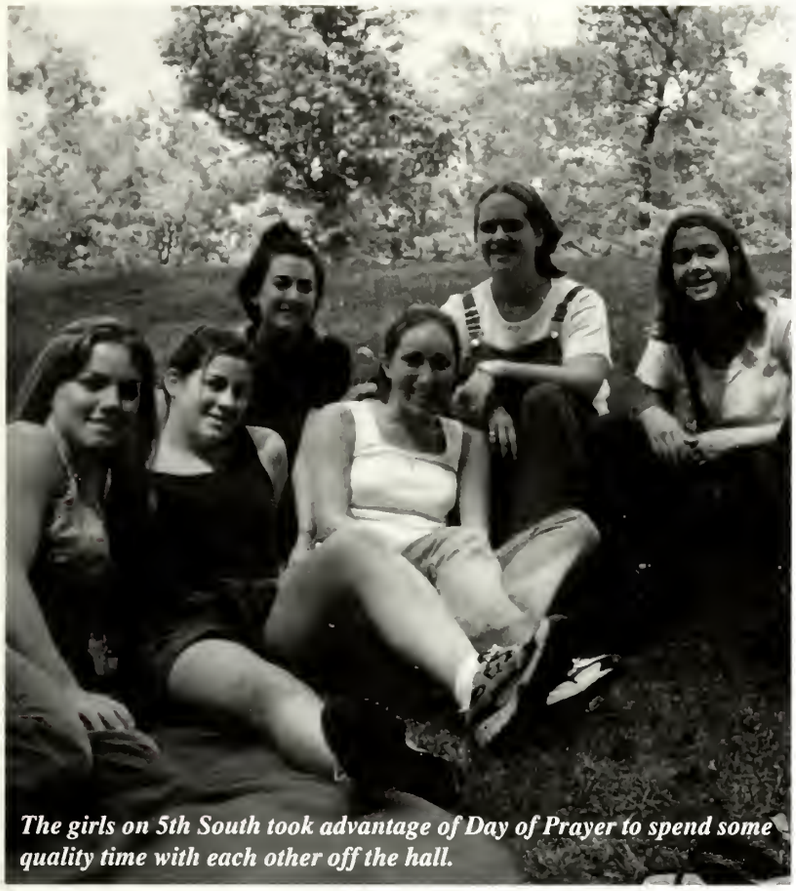
Uh –HELLO! You've stumbled across the page of 4th North. If you've read this far, they you are probably interested as to who we are. Rather then writing out a whole page about our hall –we decided to write a brief line for everyone who lives on 4th North. We hope you will enjoy, and if you don't get it, don't be afraid to ask.

Emmie –trick or treat, smell her feet, hello her name is Marguerite! Keresa – Toodles! Erica –Charge it! Hannah –Hannah who? Isn't she engaged to Ashley's brother? Abby –Yeah. We'll need those TPS reports ASAP. Lonnie –Lonski! Clean up your stuff! Lydia – It's okay guys, whatever ya'll want. I don't care. Sarah –Do my lips look swollen? Heidi –what part of don't take our stuff don't you understand? Katie –Say my name, say my name! Ashley – Let's go study, but can we stop by Gap first? Danielle –How about a diet coke Nyjer? Katy –Watch out for that guard rail!!! Erin –I don't know guys, I think he likes me. Jess –What a spaz! Jeanne – Clickity, click from the care bear!

Like many of the hall skits on Carter Skit Night, 4th North focused on Covenant's recent win over Bryan College. What would have done had Covenant lost the soccer game?



The girls on 5th South took advantage of Day of Prayer to spend some quality time with each other off the hall.

5th South has been around for years but this year our beloved residence life territory has been going through quite a gargle –we want to be different like Amy. We started off the year in a state of uncertainty with only one 5th South Playstation, yous the champs, Tug; eleven hot tamales –including the beautiful Steph Granberry; and a random group of cows, definitely enhanced by the girls in the four-man (a.k.a. the SKAB's.) What an interesting soap opera! "This has been a young and restless year" said Adrienne Christopher at an infamous gathering. We've had the accent of deciding what 5th South is in our own voluptuous way (thanks to Chari'.) To us a hall is a place where people can be beastly and slam each other against the walls (like Mel)-this isn't easy and we are still working on showing each other our toe fungus. We've been working hard, like a day in Brooke's Paso Robles PE class, to accomplish our goals through BOLD, French meetings and attentive christening sessions (lead by Katherine H.) We see this at work in our teeny-weenie lives, and we dramatically scream "woo hoo!" with Emily S. and Alina. As we look back and see who has been placed on our hall, we see how "central" we all are in the life of Amy Claire Andothersonour Hall. This is not because we're chipper, like Cami, but because we're bouncy like the Heathers. Even Emily B. couldn't have cooked up something as great as our big booty, big booty, ohh yeah BIG BOOTY! If we could put anything on a big Katherine C. "got milk?" billboard for the world to read –we would surely say it is the (April-like) hairball of enthusiasm and love that has laminated us into one threatening sealant!

One of the nice things about the student apartments is that is a little more like home than the dorms. Emily Jordan and Hosanna Tamminga add a little bit of Christmas cheer to their apartment with some Christmas lights.

Candles. Real Food. No Hall meetings. Setting your own open hours. Real Food. Peace and Quiet. No Fire Alarms at two in the morning. Real Food. Not having to pack your room for Christmas. Real Food. Cheaper than the dorms. Real Food. As anyone can see, there are many advantages to living in the student apartments over the dorms, not the least of which is the chance to cook your own food. Right past the soccer fields and across from South Campus road, the student apartments are just far enough from campus to feel independent and just close enough that campus is easily reached. They are nestled back into a perfect spot, so that students can look out to the woods from their back windows. And since the apartments include a living room and a small kitchen, students have more have a homey feeling than they do in the dorms. All in all, they are the perfect housing choice for many Covenant students each year.

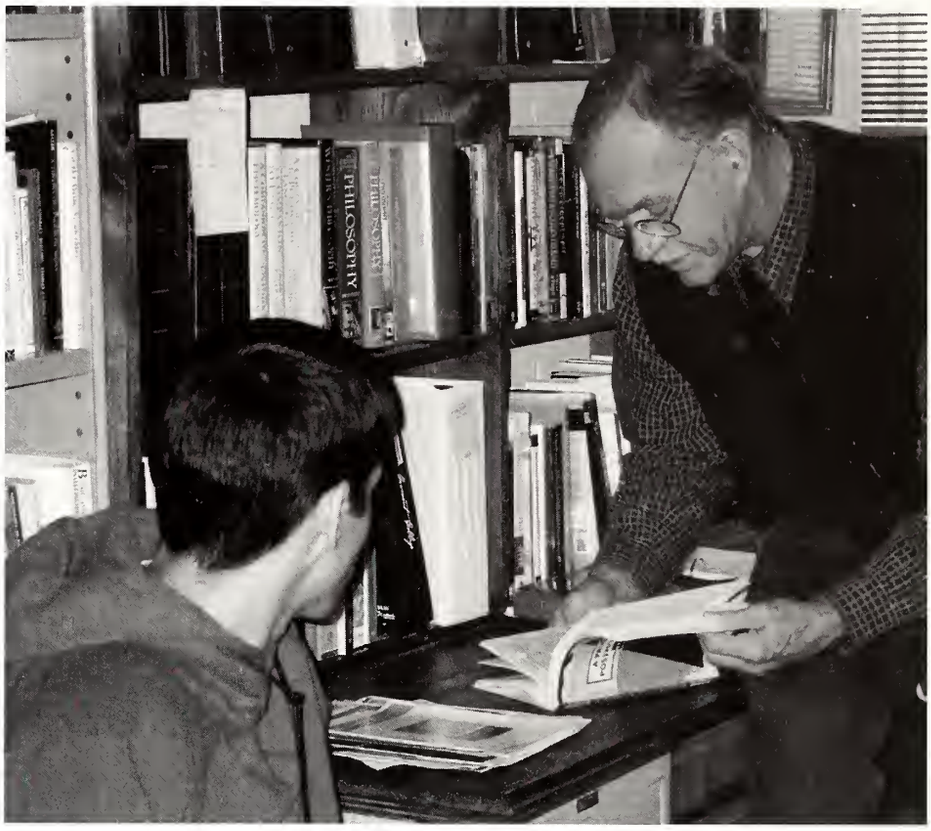
Academics

The motto of Covenant College, that Christ is to have pre-eminence in all things, finds its most profound expression in its academic endeavors. All disciplines--everything from physics to philosophy--are taught and studied in submission to God's Word. For it is only in the light of His Word that we can truly make any sense of the world at all.

Robert Heiskell was one of the almost 50 students who traveled to Wheaton for this year's philosophy conference on the openness of God movement.



Dr. McLelland shares his vast knowledge with a freshman, Wes Van der Lugt. Of course the book which he is perusing helps considerably.

Faculty Highlight

Dr. Davis lectures on Descartes and Bacon, while his students listen intently.

Dr. Davis is an Associate Professor of Philosophy (1997). Ph.D. and M.A., University of Notre Dame; M.A., Westminster Theological Seminary; B.A., Covenant College

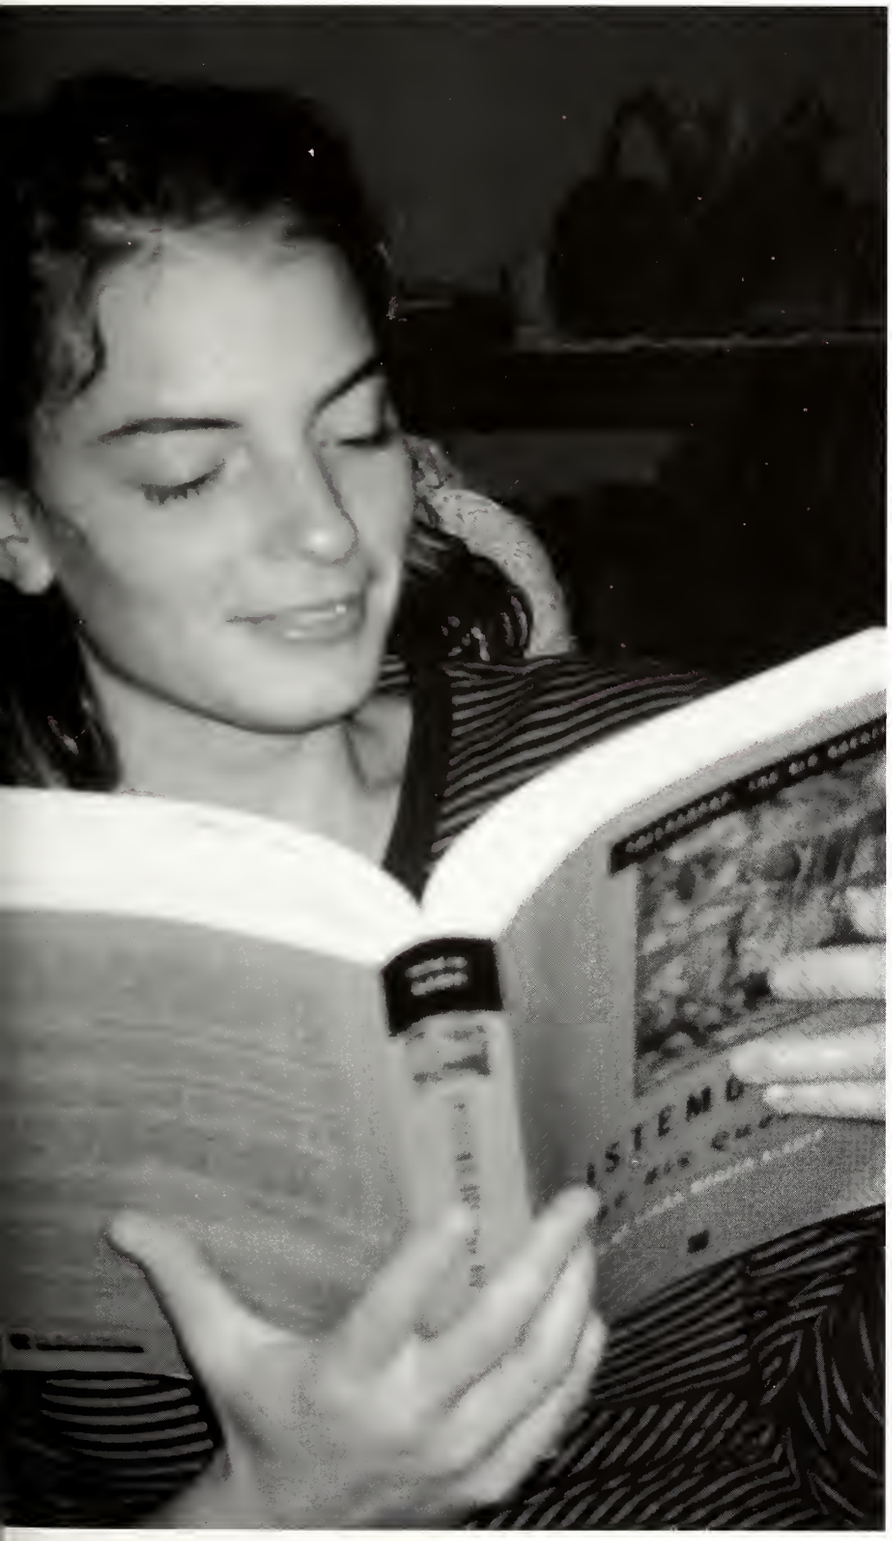
Philosophy



Geschichte Happens!

What's the point of philosophy anyway? Is it about winning arguments, studying the history of wrong ideas, debunking modernism and everything pagan? For some, perhaps. But real Covenant College philosphers know that it actually consists of hearing Dr. McLelland expound the platonic virtues of womanhood (i.e. Tucker), discerning one's "conceptual framework," listening to Dr. Davis' wild college exploits, and traveling in a bus-full of philosophers to Wheaton every fall semester. And I guess it is also an exercise in critical thinking, a treasure-hunting for truth, a collecting of wisdom, and a sharpening of discernment. But mostly, it's Dr. McLelland and Dr. Davis, who make the harder parts--the late nights and mind-mincing classes, the terminology overload and wading through boring texts, the horridly-hard papers and torn-apart drafts--altogether worthwhile.

The Language Lab, located on the second floor of the library provides a place for foreign language students to work on their assignments and get extra help.

Esther Alfonzo, one of the student assistants in the Language Lab, practices a drama for her Spanish class.

Faculty Highlight

Mr. Smisson, the Spanish professor, reads through a textbook in preparation for class.

Mr. Smisson is Assistant Professor of Modern Languages (1986) M.A., University of Kentucky; B.A., Georgia College

Hannah Hager works dilligently on her Language Lab assigment. These assigments give the students practice in speaking and listening.

Foreign Languages

Much to the great joy of several Covenant students, a new faculty member was added to the numbers this last year, making a French and a German program possible. Mr. Tom Neiles is a master at both languages, and so far has proven to be an excellent teacher in his field. Elementary to Advanced French are now offered as well as Elementary and upper level German classes.

For a few students, the new French classes have been a highlight to the Covenant experience. The Covenant community has a growing number of people who have spent time living and studying in Aix-en-Provence, a town in the South of France. Some have begun and others have continued their studies in the French language there in Aix. For a while, Covenant offered no opportunity to continue these studies, not even offering a French minor.

But now, with a new professor and upper level classes, a minor is possible and a major program is in the works. The study of French literature, poetry, and grammar is availabe to all who are interested, and the instruction of Mr. Neiles lends a quality of excellence and expertise that challenges and motivates.

Steve Lewin, one of Covenant's star violinists, wows the crowd at Madrigals. He, along with the Renaissance Consort, entertained the crowds with some medieval dances.

For Dr. Hamm's last homecoming weekend concert, many alumni returned to sing with the current chorale. Their performance was greatly enjoyed by all in attendance.

Faculty Highlights

Dr. Steele played three different recorders as part of the Renaissance Consort at Madrigals.

Dr. Steele is an Associate Professor of Music (1997) Ph.D., University of Chicago; M.Mus. and B.M.E., Temple University

Nate Oster makes his conducting debut at the preview weekend concert.

Music

Covenant's Music Department is very active, putting on many concerts throughout the year for special events such as homecoming, preview weekend, and graduation as well as recitals and vespers for the enjoyment of the Covenant community. One of the highlights of the year is the Madrigals dinner, which features performances by the Madrigal singers, the Renaissance Consort, and the Brass Quintet. Other music groups at Covenant include the Chorale, Chamber Orchestra, and Brass Choir. Private voice and instrument lessons are also offered to students.

Covenant's Madrigal Singers and Chorale are led by Dr. John Hamm, who has been a professor at Covenant since 196 4 and will be retiring this year. Dr. Hamm's presence will be greatly missed by the Music Department and also by anyone who has ever seen his choirs perform at Madrigals or on Chorale Tour, which occurs during Spring Break every year. He demands perfection from his students, and it shows in their performances. Dr. Hamm will indeed be missed and his place in Covenant's Music Department will be hard to fill.

Mindy Johnson works dedicatedly on her Econometrics project using the SAS statistical computer program. The Econometrics students spend many long hours with the year long assignment in which they are able to use the SAS program to estimate different variables in the project.

Mr. Dave Shideler is one the newest teachers in the economics department. He works in the Chahners Center as well as teaching economic courses.

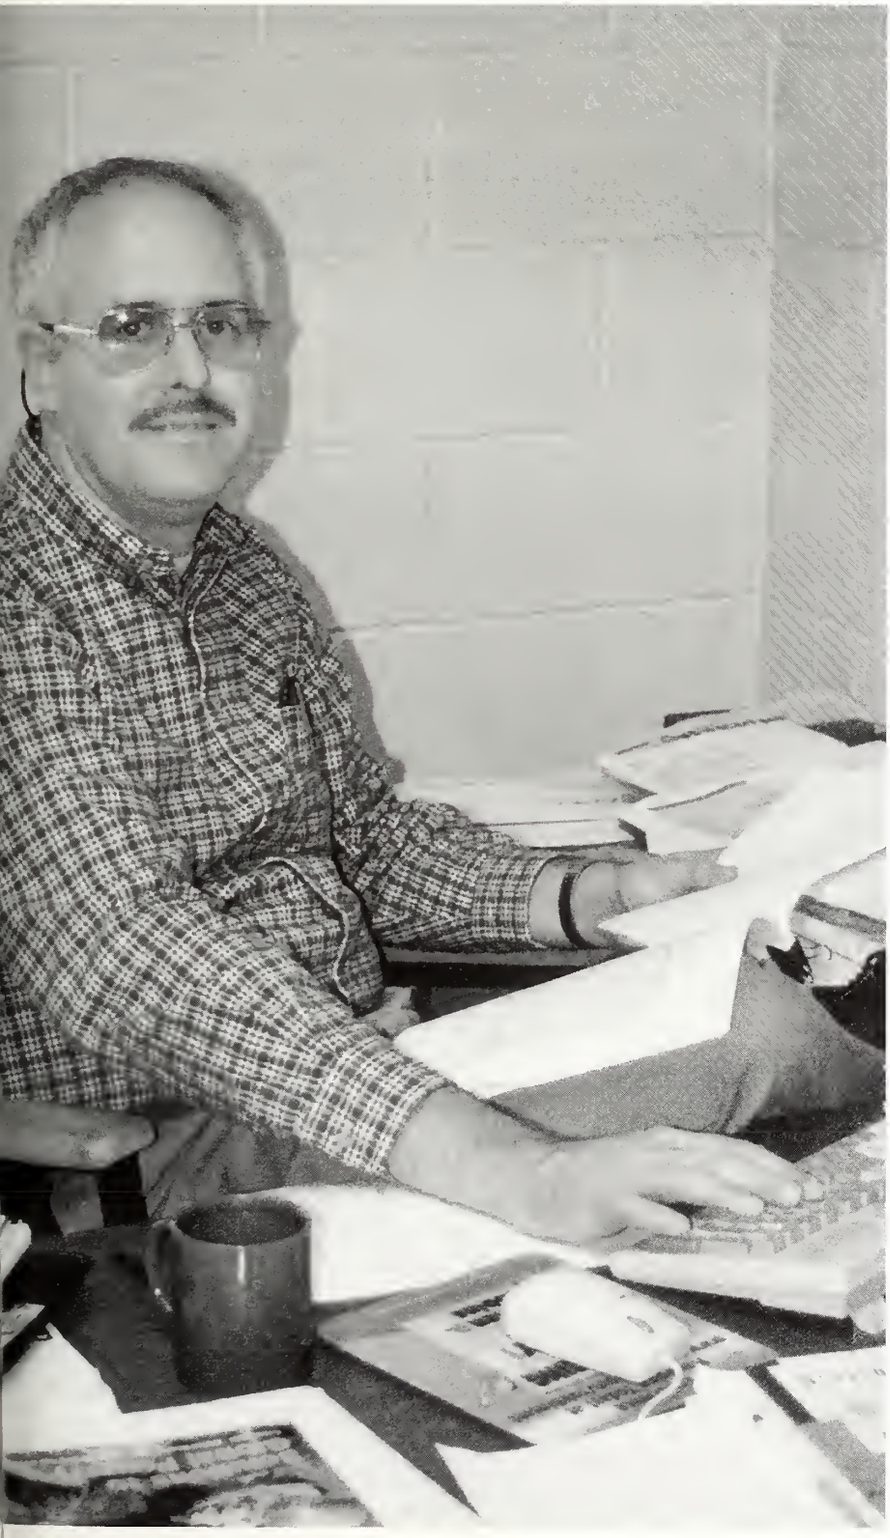
Faculty Highlight

Dr. Brian Fikkert leads the Intermediate Macroeconomics class in a discussion of the dynamics of policy changes. Just what does happen to aggregate demand when you increase the money supply?

Dr. Fikkert is an Associate Professor of Economics and Director of The Chalmers Center (1997). Ph.D. and M.Phil, Yale University; B.S., Dordt College

Dr. Mask is hard at work planning for the upcoming study-abroad opportunity in Kenya. The program has had much planning and prayer put into it, and if successful, would run from late May to mid-December of 2001.

Economics



The Economics department has been growing in leaps and bounds especially when one considers their new location as well. The Chalmers Center and Economic department, both led by Dr. Brian Fikkert, have moved from a small collection of offices on the third floor of Mills to the entire second floor of the new Rymer hall. The move has provided the much needed space for a fast growing program.

Many students choose to participate in the economics department because of the great perspective it brings to the business world. Thus, even if one is not an economics major, it is often included as a minor along with a business major, or as one section of an IDS major.

One of the most exciting events has been the planning for a new summer/fall study abroad program. The Economics department has been working hard with Daystar University in Kenya to plan a joint study abroad program. The program would feature ten weeks of classes at Daystar then followed by an microenterprise development internship. During this time the students would each be paired up with a local African student. The program, if successful, would run from late May to mid-December. "I am really excited about the opportunity to take part in such an incredible venture. It's not like any program I have seen before," stated economics student Bethany LoPiccolo. The economics department is offering the program not just to Covenant students, but to any interested students outside of Covenant as well.

Mary Grace Godfrey, a junior education major, researches in Covenant's Kresge library for one of her many education projects.

Faculty Highlights

Dr. Evearitt discusses the final for Christ and Culture. Dr. Evearitt was one of the professors who supervised a section of Christ and Culture, in addition to the education classes he teaches.

Dr. Evearitt is a Professor of Education (1979) Ed.D. and M.A., Illinois State University; M.A., Trinity Evangelical Divinity School; B.A., Fort Wayne Bible College. Executive Director: Center for the Advancement of Christian Education.

Dr. Haddad laughs at the smily face that someone left outside of her door. It is such a wonderful thing to see the relationships that develop between the professors and the students in the years spent in education classes.

Education

Learning (or remembering how) to play the recorder. Painting a Fresco. Jumping Rope. "Teaching" your professors, while they act like middle school kids. Dressing up like Native Americans and leading your class on the Trail of Tears. Eating candy provided by the professor while making a "dream box." Learning the hand motions to numerous children's songs. Scarf dancing. Acting like turtles with the parachute for a shell. Projects, projects, projects. Oh the joys of being an elementary education major. Many do choose to do just that. The Education department at Covenant is one of the largest departments, containing six professors as well as many adjuncts. The purpose of the Teacher Education Program is to prepare competent teachers who practice their craft according to biblical precepts in any and every educational setting. To do this, students examine carefully in the light of God's Word various principles and practices proposed by both secular and Christian educators. Students who graduate from Covenant's Teacher Education Program are well prepared to teach in a variety of educational settings and to do so unto the glory of God.

Study Abroad

From sea to shining sea, to shining sea, to Indian Ocean, to about five continents and twelve countries went Covenant students this year, studying abroad. Some of us went with school trips packaged neatly with professors and core classes, and others of us studied at local universities in places like Glasgow, Oxford, Jerusalem, Nairobi, China (Qinhuangdao), and Rome. It's a good way to fill the requirement for a cross-cultural experience; not only do you get to travel, but you also get to stay in a new place for longer than a week, learn in new ways, and receive credit. It's a hard opportunity to pass up.

The opportunity that I didn't pass up was the trip to Honduras. I was one of ten Covenant students who lived in a small Honduran village for ten weeks. We brought three professors with us and lived in close quarters with a group of Americans who worked with local farmers and discipled missionaries. We learned in class how to respond to the culture we were experiencing: deforestation became real to us when we could look out the window of our classroom and see big rainforest mountains pockmarked with slash-and-burn fields.

I was impressed by the sheer experience of it, the energy in the city streets and the novelty of a village soccer game on Saturday afternoon. I wanted to bring these home with me; I wanted to bottle up the smells and the textures. But the heart of the trip was the relationships we built. Living within fifty feet of twenty other people provoked intimacy. Working alongside Honduran farmers taught compassion. Staying with village families for a few nights was meeting hospitality face to face. And knowing that I was a small part of a village, sharing in the lives of its members, made the trip worthwhile.

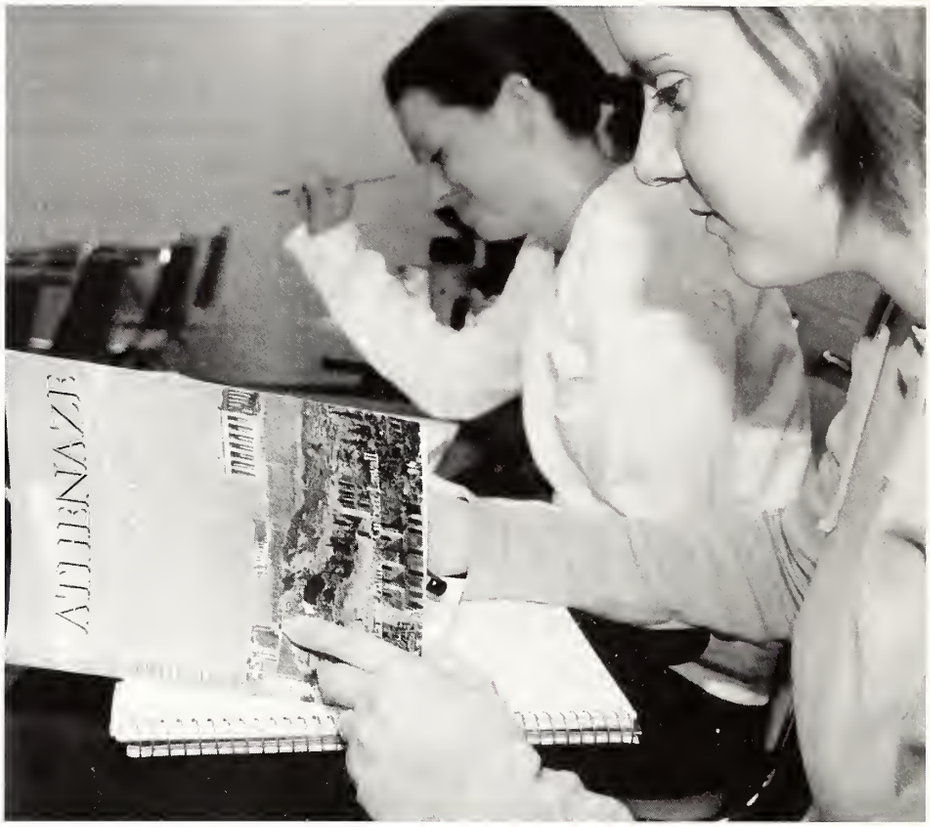
Psychology

The smell of freshly brewed coffee and steaming hot chocolate and a warm cozy lounge are unfortunately the only benefits a majority of the students associate with the Psychology Department. However, although these are definitely reasons to visit the Psychology lounge, those who have taken Psychology classes know that these merely scratch the surface of the advantages gained from being involved in the Psychology Department. Dr. Wright and Dr. Rulon, the two Psychology professors here at Covenant hold classes that are intellectually challenging, yet fascinating and compelling. Furthermore, the labs that are required with these classes are sometimes the most informative aspects of them, as they provide hands-on learning. The rat lab (complete with live rats and "Skinner" training boxes), psychological testing materials (such as the WAIS intelligence test), as well as bio-feedback recording devices (to track physiological activity such as brain activity and eye movements) are a few of the resources that have been used just this year. These labs, as well as the thorough teaching provided during class (and of course the endless supply of coffee and M&Ms) foster knowledge in students that will be indispensable in the future to students majoring and minoring in Psychology.

Greek students are here hard at work studying God's Word in the original language.



Many Covenant students take Greek as a requirement for their Bible major, in preparation for seminary, or for its usefulness in exegeting Scripture.

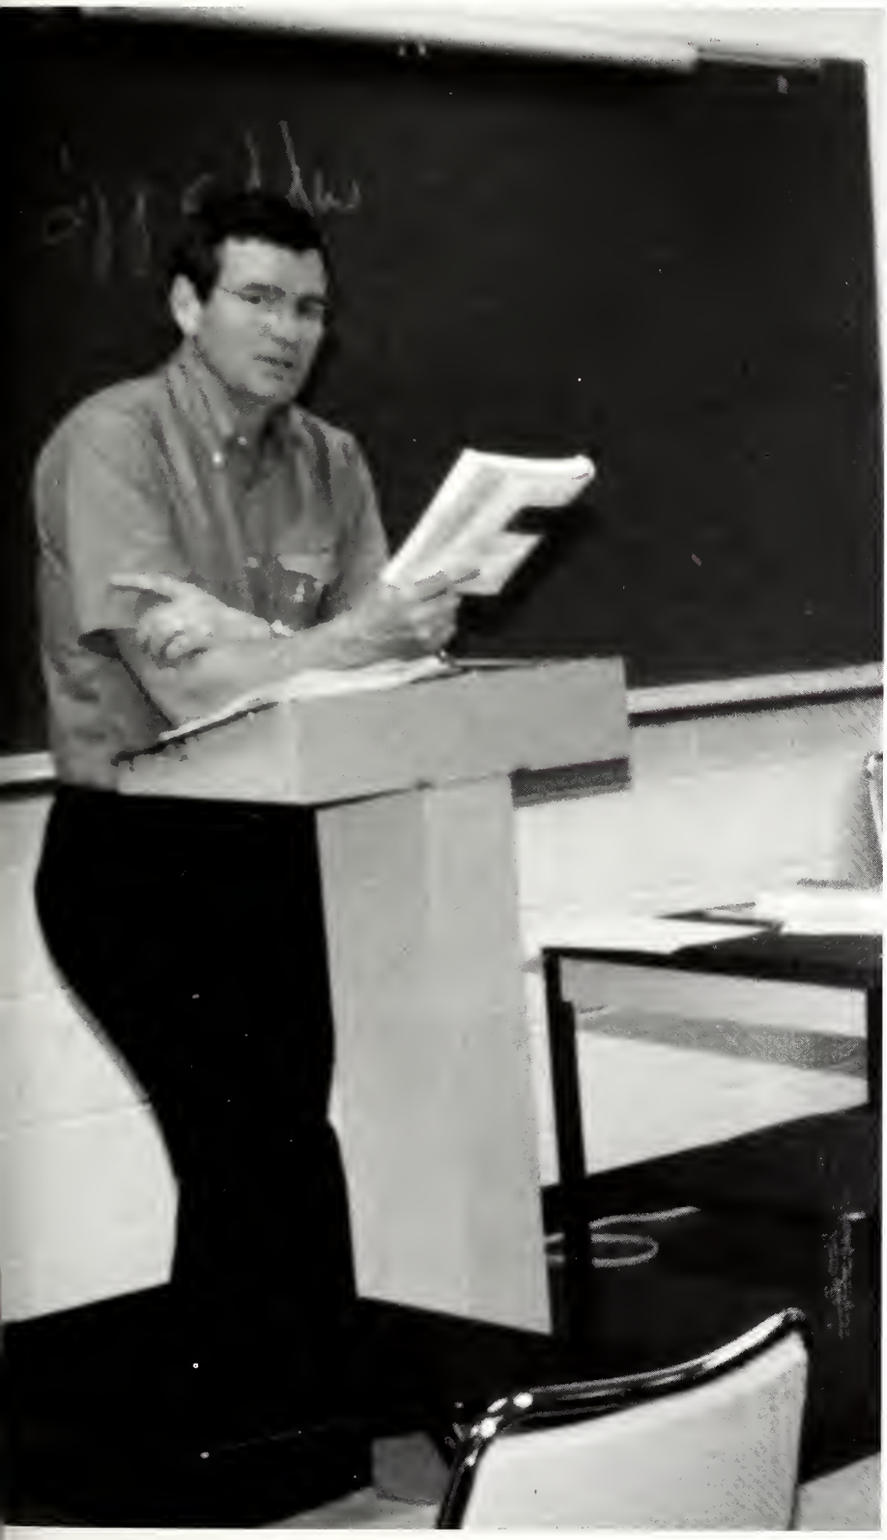
Biblical Studies



The Biblical Studies department at Covenant has impacted my life in more ways than I know. Within developing relationships both in and outside of school, I am reminded daily of the irreplaceable impact that Covenant has had.

The Bible courses are in a league of their own with historical, theological, and personal emphasis. But it is the professors that create the ideal environment within the classroom. Though diverse in their teaching styles, their lives and lectures portray to their students a heart and life dedicated to Christ. This personal dedication on their part transforms the classroom into a haven provoking thought and conversation. The theology taught is grounded by years of study and selfless dedication of men who have devoted their lives to discovering the Truth. It is an honor to sit in these classes discovering how to truly live a life for God and how to effectively be a witness.

The courses offered and required prepare the student for a life outside of Covenant, whether we go on to seminary or a masters program, to various working fields, or the mission field, or to raise a covenant family. We have a priceless treasure that we will pass on to our children and our children's children, thus continuing the line of men and women who in their unique ways have dedicated their lives to the Lord. We leave our college years equipped with what is necessary to be light in a world of darkness.

Dr. Lou Voskuil

Professor of History (1972)
Ph.D. and M.A., Loyola University; A.B., Calvin College; B.D., Westminster Theological Seminary

Respected by students and faculty alike for his years of service to Covenant College, Dr. Voskuil will be retiring from full time teaching.

A student is so engrossed in his Russian history text that he can not put it down to walk from class to class.

History

Looking back at the gamut of the history program that I have been through at Covenant, I have found that there is a kind of history, with observable patterns, to being a history major. When one first enters the department, one quickly learns that Marsden is right, the culture box is the framework, to succeed one must be able to write book reviews, MLA is of the devil and Communists, and always staple papers turned in to Dr. Voskuil. With this newfound knowledge in hand, the history major steps confidently, and unsuspectingly, onto a roller coaster through time.

As this diligent student plunges into Modern Middle East, Medieval Civilizations, and book reviews, she quickly becomes privy to an obscure fact: history majors read as much as English majors. This must be true because Dr. Voskuil covered Russian history from 300-1700 AD all before the midterm…plus a book review.

As this history major's roller coaster reaches its highest point, she has hit what I call the Junior Year Hump. You can always tell when the bleary-eyed history student has reached this point because she has ten overdue books at the library (eight of which are from inter-library loan), and she has learned how to drink coffee that is indistinguishable from sludge. She also knows, at this point, that Dr. Morton hides peppermint patties in his filing cabinet, and she begins to wonder if he really is drinking only water in his Endangered Species cup.

The ultimate shock a history major receives, however, is Historiography class. The pleasant, amiable student who was in CHOW just a year ago turns into a cynical hermit as everything she thought was true perishes into the death chasm of Historiography, along with wie et eigentlich gewesen. The history major learns that history is not about memorizing dates and facts, because there are no such things as facts, just perspectives. For instance, was the American Revolution really a revolution?

At the brink of a history major's senior year, she is back to square one. The culture box has been dismantled. The Christian Science Monitor subscription has run out…twice. And the student believes that Dr. Morton really does have water in his mug, because that's the only bit of reality one can still cling to. Then the history major enters Dr. Green's Senior Seminar…otherwise known as Torture Seminar, SIP Boot Camp, or How to Become Personally Acquainted with Kate Turabian. This class was invented because Dr. Green wants to read top quality SIP's, Dr. Voskuil wants to read good SIP's, and Dr. Morton doesn't want "to read SIP's that are crap". This project culminates in doubling up with another history major pal in order to have use of a SIP carrel all year to write on some topic that gets glazed looks from other people when the student tries to explain what it is.

I'm sure at the end of this major every student is glad that they can never again look at the world the same way; that they can write book reviews and beautiful bibliographies; that they know the formula for nationalist, indigenous revolutions; and that their brains are completely fried but they still want to go to graduate school. I certainly have no regrets—after all, what can one expect from people who write their dissertations on the civilization of the Gepids and migration patterns of ducks from Canada.

Many of the art projects that students are asssigned take great concentration and skill to accomplish.

ART

Down in the art barn we are making things, not just making things but doing things. We are building giant vegetables, cutting up magazines with exacto knives, drawing chairs, tearing up broken vcrs, making paintings too big to put anywhere, trying to understand color, learning the difference between shape and form (& why that does matter), learning to see value in abstraction and representation, trying to figure out if a painting is an object or a window (or neither), learning about the thosuands of years of art that preceeded us, & trying to find our place in that time line, & learning that art is much more than self expression, but mostly seeing the reason Christ spoke in metaphor so often: because subtlety is a beautiful thing.

People

All of the activities, classes, clubs, and sports that a college could provide are of course meaningless apart from the people themselves. And it is the people of the college--the students, faculty, staff, and administration--that make Covenant College great.

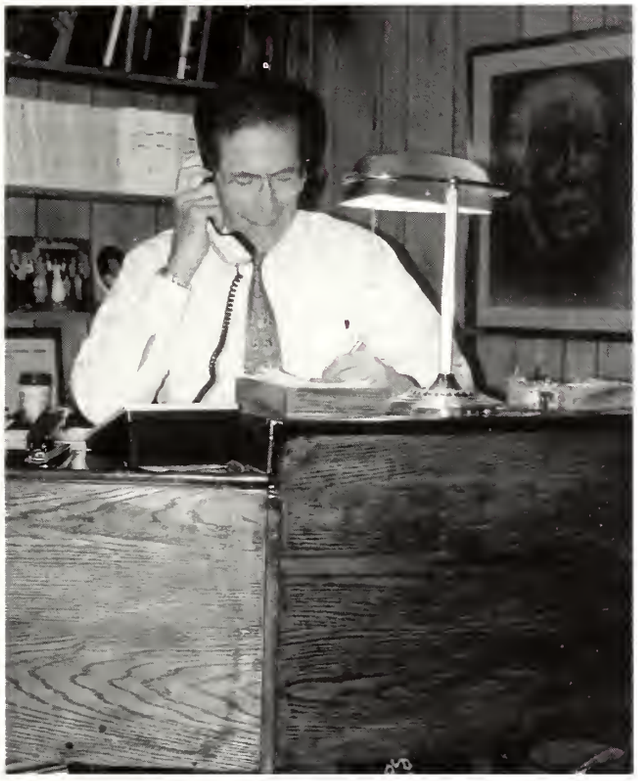
A Letter From the President



It is a great privilege to congratulate the class of 2001. When the college awards a degree, we award it saying, "With all the rights and privileges appertaining thereto." You can be rightfully proud of your accomplishment. Statistics say that your education will enable you to earn more; be more effective in your community; and have greater opportunities for career choices and advancement.

Such opportunities can have one of two effects. They may make you part of the new information age which is marked by a growing disparity between the rich and the poor (the educated and the uneducated), or your education may enable you to reach out to those who have not had similar opportunities, and provide help.

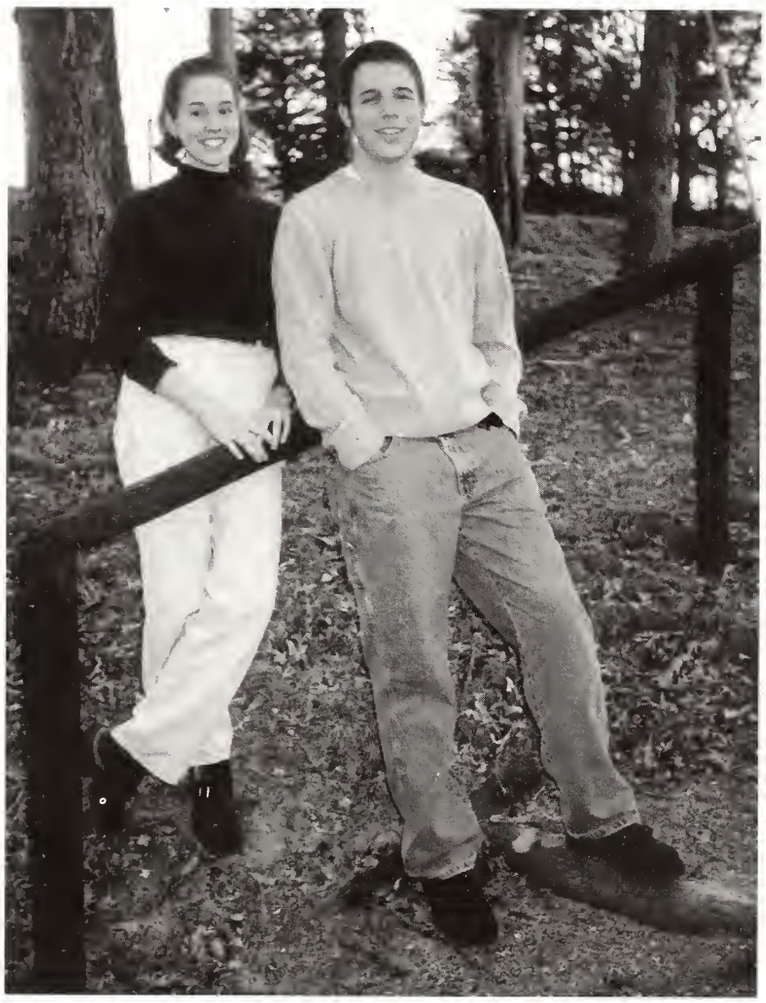
If you are to be a member of a church that is relevant to the physical and spiritual needs of others, you must use your education to benefit others.

This is the uniqueness of a Covenant education, of looking at the world through the lens of the bible.

I pray we have served you well so that you can serve others, whether it be through business, education, medicine, government, science or the pastorate. May you go out into the world, humbly seeking to be of service, courageously standing for what is good and true and praiseworthy.

Frank A. Brock
President

A Note From the Editors...



The day has finally arrived – we are not only finished with the 2001 Tartan, but we are finished with our three-year career working on the Covenant yearbook staff. These last three years have brought us many memories, some good friendships, and some self-reflection about our own sanity. We have learned how to delegate responsibility, and how to pick up the slack when someone's work does not get done. We have learned infinite patience, and how to get things accomplished yesterday. And we have learned that the money made is not the only reward, but a job well done is worth much.

To our staff, thank you for all the work you put into this. Thank you for putting up with our disorganization and procrastination and with us. Thank your for on-time work and late work, which taught us patience. Thank you for the important part which you played in producing this book.

To Bethany, thank you for the fun times we have had working together these last three years. Thank you for your humor and your sarcasm. Thanks for working so faithfully and doing so many tasks.

To Mike, thank you for your encouraging words, for being patient with us, and for always asking if you can do anything to help. Thank you for carefully and thoroughly proofreading everything.

To the Covenant community, thank you to all of you who turned in pictures or stories. We appreciate your help. We hope that you enjoy this year's book, and are able to look back at it years from now with fond memories of the 2000-2001 school year.

Finally, we sincerely hope that in all that we have done this year and in every page of this book we have represented Covenant College's motto "In all things, Christ pre-eminent." May we all continually walk in the light of His word and give Him the glory that is due His name.

The 2001 Tartan (volume 44) was published by Walsworth Publishing Company, located in Marceline, Missouri and represented by Bill Stoess. The book has 216 pages (22 in color), and all pages use AWPC body and display fonts. All Scripture references are taken with permission from the Holy Bible, New King James Version (except for the exceptions). The entire book was laid out in Adobe Pagemaker 6.5 on Dell Dimension XPS R350's with Intel Pentium II processors. No, the theme is not supposed to be an attempt at integrating faith and learning; we just thought it looked cool in silver writing.

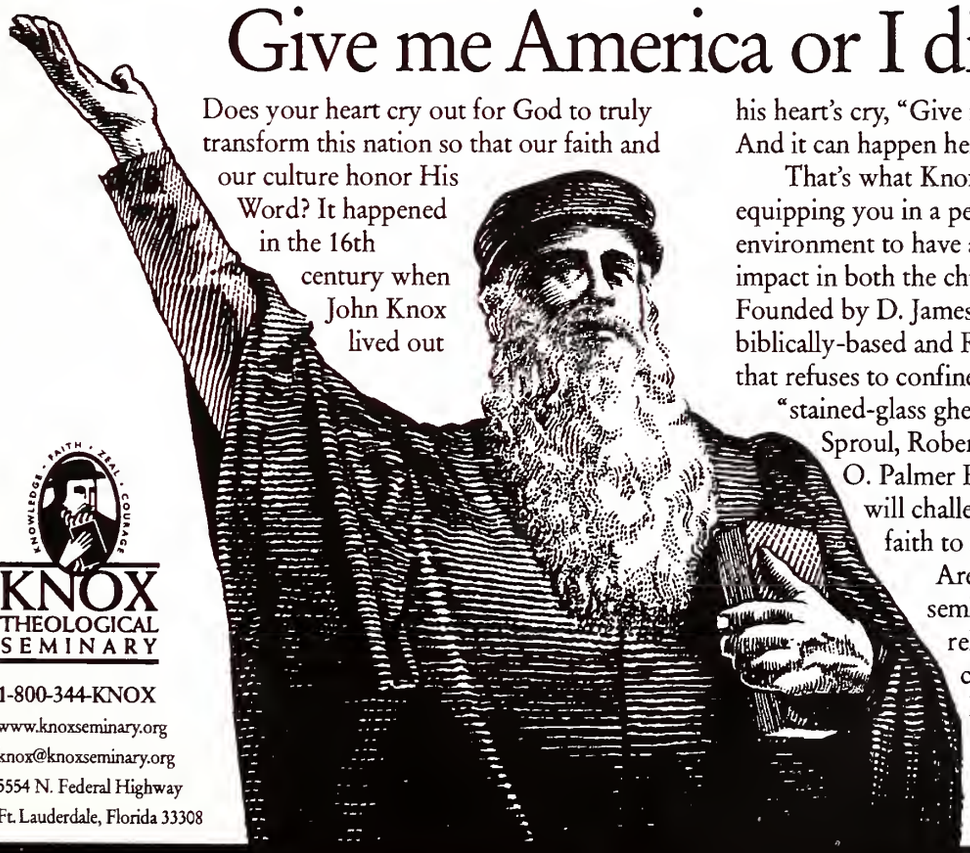
Give me America or I die.



Does your heart cry out for God to truly transform this nation so that our faith and our culture honor His Word? It happened in the 16th century when John Knox lived out his heart's cry, "Give me Scotland or I die!" And it can happen here.

That's what Knox Seminary is all about, equipping you in a personal, mentoring environment to have a world-changing impact in both the church and the culture. Founded by D. James Kennedy, Knox is a biblically-based and Reformed seminary that refuses to confine God's truths to a "stained-glass ghetto." Instead, R.C. Sproul, Robert L. Reymond, O. Palmer Robertson and others will challenge you to apply your faith to all of life.

Are you looking for a seminary education that is relevant to today's challenges? Then give Knox Seminary a try. Call 1-800-344-KNOX today for a catalog and application.

The light of the Lord has always shone through your eyes. I thank God for you and the loving, faithful woman you have become. May God bless you now and always in your walk with Him. May His light shine forever in your eyes.
Like the applause of the leaves when the wind visits, I celebrate you today.
Love, Mom

For this reason I bow my knees to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, from whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, that He would grant you, Ty, according to the riches of His glory, to be strengthened with might through His Spirit in the inner man, that Christ may dwell in your heart through faith: that you, Ty, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all the saints what is the width and length and depth and height - to know the love of Christ which passes knowledge: that you may be filled with all the fullness of God.

We love you, Mom, Todd, and Tim

Blessed is the man who does not walk in the counsel of the wicked or stand in the way of sinners or sit in the seat of mockers. But his delight is in the law of the Lord, and on his law he meditates day and night. He is like a tree planted by streams of water, which yields its fruit in season and whose leaft does not wither. Whatever he does prospers. Psalm 1:1-3

Dear Monique,

From breakfasts with Josh to the blessing of minuit
From your first trip to Aix to your summer painting there
We rejoice in your growth at Covenant.

Keep asking Questions!
You have such insight and humor inside.
You have Buda's contagious laugh.
What a great way God has given you to bless and delight people.

We will never stop praying
That the Joy of the Lord will be your strength, and
That your love may abound more and more in knowledge and depth of insight. (Phil. 1:9-11)
